

MEET THE SPEAKERS

LATASHA CALF ROBE

Anitopisi Leadership Program lead, Trico Changemakers Studio

Latasha is a proud Kainakii from the Kainaiwa First Nation (Blood Tribe). In her role at the Studio, she is able to weave together traditional knowledge and systems thinking into the delivery of the Anitopisi Leadership Program. She is an alumnus of Mount Royal University and during her time as a student and staff has advocated for the proper recognition of Indigenous knowledge in education. She is also cross appointed with the Institute for Community Prosperity where she serves as the Program Manager of Map the System Canada.

DR. MICHAEL HART, PHD

Vice-Provost (Indigenous Engagement), University of Calgary

Michael is a citizen of Fisher River Cree Nation. As a father of two teenage boys who are exploring the world and figuring out how to reach their dreams, he sees the need for and is deeply committed to, creating greater opportunities for Indigenous people. He serves as a key champion and advocate for the Indigenous Strategy, ii'taa'poh'to'p, at the University of Calgary. Dr. Hart's career has been focused on Indigenous Peoples and enabling the University of Calgary to realize its goals for indigenization on its campuses.

PAM KRAUSE

President and CEO, Centre for Sexuality

An advocate and activist on issues related to women's equality and social justice, Pam has worked and volunteered in the Calgary non-profit community for 25 years. She became active in the 2SLGBTQ+ rights movement in the early 1990's and continues to be a strong advocate for her community. Under Pam's leadership, the Centre for Sexuality has grown and today is the only non-profit organization in our community that provides comprehensive sexual health programs and services to people across the lifespan. The Centre is recognized for innovation in implementing programs that have meaningful results for the populations they serve.

MODERATED BY

LENA SOOTS

Director, Trico Changemakers Studio

Lena is the Director of the Trico Changemakers Studio at Mount Royal University. She is an educator, facilitator, process designer and consultant with over 20 years experience working with academic institutions, local government, community organizations and business in multi-stakeholder collaborations for systems change. Her work focuses on social innovation with an emphasis on designing processes and programs that foster deep collaboration and transformative learning. Prior to coming to Calgary, Lena was on the leadership team of CityStudio Vancouver, the City of Vancouver's Greenest City Steering Committee and a faculty member with the Centre for Sustainable Community Development at Simon Fraser University.